Cisco IOS Shell Script to SSH into one Host Using several Host Names in the Variables

"ssh hostname -p 12000 -s /dev/null"

Connections made by this script are not persistent, meaning they cannot be used with multiple -s /dev/null - Make this variable blank, so that you can connect to the target host but not persist the connection. If your target host is up, this will have no effect, but it will make the next host's connection break.

Q: Rails: Default log to file on new Heroku app I'm using the free Heroku web server. I'm new to using rails. I've written a simple app that, I want to host at the Heroku web site. However, I'd like my log files to be created when the server is first started. Right now, when I run the app, if I go to the localhost:3000/logs/development.log, I get what appears to be my local development log file created when I first ran the app on my local computer. The information I'd like to get to is, is there a way to make the log file on Heroku be automatically created? It's super easy to delete the log file every time the app is ran so I don't really want that. I could also just use paperclip, but I'd like to learn. Thanks for any help. A: Log files do not get created automatically. It is very easy to delete a log file if you so wish, but if you want logging to create a log file automatically as soon as you deploy to Heroku, there is nothing you can do.

The accuracy of cervical osseous grafts in the treatment of severe hallux rigidus deformity. Osseous grafting is currently the mainstay of treatment of severe hallux rigidus. The purpose of this study was to evaluate the effect of osseous grafting on patient-reported outcomes and assess the long-term incidence of implant loosening in severe hallux rigidus deformity treated with coronal osteotomy, interposition arthrodesis and distal chevron soft tissue interposition arthroplasty using cervical osseous grafting. Thirty-four patients (mean age, 55.4 years)
